Training legal professionals: a core mission

In his remarks, Assoc. Prof. Dr. Trinh Tien Viet, Acting Rector, said training legal professionals remains a key task for the country's sustainable development, particularly amid globalization, deepening international integration and the impact of science and technology. Guided by an educational philosophy of "liberal education, innovation, lifelong learning, and responsibility and service to the community," VNU University of Law has maintained its focus on improving the quality of training and research, building a highly qualified faculty, and reforming governance while expanding international cooperation.

Over nearly 50 years of development, the University has trained tens of thousands of undergraduate students, master's students and PhD candidates, and now offers 4 bachelor's programs, 15 master's programs and 6 PhD programs, several of which were the first of their kind in Vietnam. The University was also the first law training institution in Vietnam to have undergraduate and graduate programs accredited under AUN-QA standards.

Results for the second-degree and part-time cohorts

In this graduation round, 126 students met the requirements for degree conferral:

The University expressed confidence that, with the knowledge, skills and commitment to lifelong learning gained through the program, graduates will continue to succeed in their careers and apply their legal knowledge in service of the community and society.
